Some of the smaller speculary on the Block
Exchange and a portion of the professional element became slarmed to-day at what they regarded as a possibility of an active money market. They found the suggestion of that possibility in the further large decrease in the surplus reserve of the Associated Banks shown last Saturday's statement. The fact that the bulk of the reserve is held, as it should be, by a comparatively small number of the larger banks was also made much of by speculaters on elender margins and by traders who for several days past have endeavored to bring about a reaction in the market. These circumstances resulted in ower prices in the early dealings, although the London market for American, as well as for international, securities was strong. This was Stock Exchange, and lalthough a fairly large open account was shown in American securities, rates for carrying them through the new account were comparatively low, averaging only 2% per cent. It appears that there is a peareity of St. Paul common in the London market, for it was taken for the new account without interest.

While it is true that the surplus reserve of the Associated Banks is small in comparison with the other items and with the volume of business that the banks are transacting. grounds for apprehension of a stringent or even active money market cannot be found in the financial situation as a whole. According to all accounts there is likely to be an expan sion in circulation in the near future, that is, as soon as some of the new Government bonds are available as a basis for bank circulation. In the meantime the terminaof the loan market. Disbursements by the Treasury on account of the war will continue heavy for some time to come. The most positive assurance against an active money market is to be found in the condition of the foreign exchanges. As noted in this column a week ago, the volume of commercial bills for immediate and future delivery is constantly increasing, and the rates for sterling exchange are as steadily sinking to a lower level.

Evidence that the usual fall influx of gold is already at hand was furnished before midday in the announcement of a local financial news bureau from its London correspondent that $2,250,000 gold had been bought in the open market for shipment to the United States. This news rather checked the decline in stock values and thereafter the market was irregular owing to repurchases of stock simultaneous with further and persistent efforts to depress iem. After the close of business the engagein the usual foreign press despatches. As money is comparatively easy in London and foreign dealers are now inclined to buy American secu-rities, it is not likely that European bankers will be able to throw in the way of the inevicountry even such futile obstacles as they interposed last year. Still another factor in the money market that should not be overlooked is the increasing wealth of the West and South and the ability of those sections to handle their enormous staple crops with smaller demands upon New York and other Eastern centres

The decline in values was very nearly uniform, though, of course, most pronounced in the stocks that have been most conspicuou. in the advance. These it is not necessary to name. Moreover, an adequate comparative table of the net fluctuations is printed further on in this column, from which it will be seen that the average net loss is something over I Feent. Manhattau Railway was exceptionally strong, and was the only fairly active stock that closed higher than last Saturday. A number of the less-active and low-priced stocks showed a good deal of firmness, notably Eric arst preferred, Chicago Great Western, Wabash preferred, Chicago Terminal Transfer and Chicago and Eastern Illinois. Although business was suspended for nearly half an hour to give the members of the Exchange an opportunity to participate in the demonstration in honor of the Seventy-first Regiment, the transactions footed up nearly half a million shares The bond market also was active and prices were well maintained. The borrowing demand for stocks at the close of business was fairly brisk and many issues lent for less then the rul ing rate for money, which was about 2% F cent. As the stock loan market is not likely to b manipulated in a speculation of the present magnitude, it seems safe to assume that the day's selling of stocks has resulted in an increase of the short interest. At the same time it is obvious enough that many weak holders have been shaken out and that the market as whole is healthier for the day's operations. The closing in the main was heavy, with prices in the main down to the lowest figures. A few stocks, however, notably Sugar Refining, C., B. and Quincy, and Northern Pacific common, showed a disposition to rally.

A rather sharp advance took place in wheat early in the day on higher cables, some foreign buying orders, comparatively goderate receipts at the West, and covering of shorts. The world's shipments for the week were small, aggregating 4,903,476 bush., agginst 4,867,938 last week and 7,414,000 last year. There was a decrease in the quantity on passage of 960,000 bush. The Northwestern receipts were 582 cars, against 939 this day last week and 524 last year. Chicago received 250 cars, against 197 last week and 575 last year. Liverpool advanced 46d. to 15d. But the pressure to buy soon acated and prices slowly receded. Moreover, there was an increase in the visible supply of 77,000 bush. whereas a small decrease had been expacted, and this naturally had a depressing effect. Then, too, the receipts at Chicago to-morrow are expected to be 405 cars. The seaboard clearances were small, the total being 133,588 bush. Local operators took profits, and there was more or less short selling. The last prices, however, showed a practical net advance. Corn moved upward for a time, mainly owing to sympathy with wheat. Liverpool advanced 4d. to 54d. and this naturality of passage decreased 160,000 bush. But the advance was slight, and later on most of it was lest. The receipts at Chicago were moderate, but to-morrow 1,080 cars are expected. There was an increase in the visible supply for each of the same of the supply increased 388,000 bush.
